United Feeds Helps Olympic Archer Shoot for Gold

Sheridan, Ind.—July 26, 2004— When Stephanie White-Arnold heads to the 2004 Summer Olympics in Athens, Greece, as a member of the U.S. women’s archery team, she’ll have the support of her friends, family, and United Feeds.

The company donated $500 to White-Arnold, which she will use to bring her family support system to Athens, including her father who coaches her. The donations she’s received also will help offset the wages she’ll lose during the three weeks she’ll be at the Olympics.

Stephanie White-Arnold accepts a donation from United Feeds CFO Howie Thomas and her uncle, mechanic Steve Males.

Many people from her hometown of Portland, Ind., and the surrounding area have pitched in to help with these expenses, and, to her surprise, so has United Feeds.

“I’ve never even met all of you, and you are so incredibly thoughtful and generous,” said White-Arnold when she learned of the donation. “Thank you so much!”

While White-Arnold may not know many people at United Feeds, her uncle, Steve Males, is a mechanic at the company’s headquarters in Sheridan, Ind. And when the company found out his niece had earned a trip to the Olympics, they wanted to support her dream.

“Stephanie is the first Olympian we’ve had in our family—even if she is extended family,” said Howard Thomas, Executive Vice President and CFO. “This donation is a great way to recognize her achievement, and we’re happy to help.”

The women’s archery individual gold medal final will be broadcast on MSNBC between 10 a.m. and 4 p.m. on Wednesday, August 18. The women’s team gold medal competition will air on Bravo on Friday, Aug. 20, from midnight to 1 a.m.
