JBS UNITED ANNOUNCES ACQUISITION OF DELAKB FEEDS

SHERIDAN, IND. – JBS United, Inc. has acquired DeKalb Feeds, Inc. DeKalb Feeds is a name that the industry has trusted for years and, effective July 1, 2017, JBS United is proud to continue that legacy.

“We are extremely pleased to add DeKalb Feeds to the JBS United brand,” said Daniel Foley, Director of Supply Chain at JBS United. “DeKalb Feeds is a great organization that provides immense value to their customers and we are looking forward to continuing that.”

Over the coming months, JBS United will be transitioning the DeKalb Feeds brand to become JBS United. However, JBS United will continue to acknowledge DeKalb’s work and history by keeping the DeKalb Feeds name on cattle product labels during this transition.

JBS United has retained all key people at both DeKalb Feeds mill locations. With the acquisition of DeKalb Feeds, JBS United expands into the beef cattle industry adding to their swine, poultry, and dairy cattle production solutions.

“John B Swisher founded JBS United over 60 years ago on the belief that if you provide value to the customer, both you and your customer will succeed,” explained Doug Webel, Ph.D., President and CEO of JBS United. “JBS United remains committed to providing proven, research-based nutrition and health solutions that create value for livestock producers and we recognized those values in DeKalb Feeds, so it was a natural fit.”

About JBS United

JBS United, founded in 1956, offers livestock nutrition and health products globally through the JBS United or affiliate brands. While the organization’s headquarters are in Sheridan, Indiana, the sales staff and team members stretch from the East Coast to the West to assist customers with their business needs. In total, the JBS United operation extends to 23 countries, including South Korea, the Philippines, and locations in South America and Europe. The company, originally known as

United Feeds, set itself apart from the competition by intimately getting to know customers and understanding what they needed to be more successful. That guiding principle continues to be the foundation of JBS United. To learn more, visit JBSUnited.com
